Ethics for Peacebuilders: A Practical Guide

Reina Neufeldt

Based on her recently published book, Reina Neufeldt will explore the ethical problems and challenges that arise from peace work, which can sometimes bring harm while having good intentions. Reina will share stories from her experiences supporting peacebuilding efforts in various regions such as the Philippines and East Timor.

Reina Neufeldt has a doctorate from the School of International Service, American University, Washington DC. She is an assistant professor of Peace and Conflict Studies at Conrad Grebel University College, Waterloo, Ontario, specializing in the ethics of peacebuilding, the development of civil society and conflict transformation.
